SMART CAMPUS: Where Technology Meets Excellence

UNITY E-CONTENT DEVELOPMENT CENTRE (EDC)

(In Collaboration with MIELES: A European Union E-Learning Research Project)

The MIELES: project, a European Union-funded e-learning research initiative, has revolutionized institutional e-learning education strategies. Led by Barcelona University, this collaborative effort involved seven Indian Higher Educational Institutions, including KAHM Unity Women's College, Manjeri, Kerala which received a grant of ₹42 lakh from 2016 to 2021.

- The project's primary objectives are:
- Supporting Institutional Management for e-learning .
- Developing strategic approaches to e-learning through staff and student training. Facilitating knowledge sharing inside and outside Institution on e-learning strategy and capacity .
- Fostering Indian-European collaboration in e-learning.

To achieve these goals, the project established an E-Content Development Studio, producing over 100 e-content materials, videos showcasing campus activities, and introductory course videos. As a rural institution, partnering with the European Union has opened doors to future international collaborations, linking with other global initiatives, and promoting learning studies.

The project's outcomes are as follows

- Collaboration with the European Union has paved the way for future international partnerships.
- Establishing connections with other global initiatives in the future.
- Raising awareness about e-learning studies in post-COVID scenarios.
- Successfully imparting multimedia education content with the support of staff and students.
- Transforming the college into a centre of knowledge, with the establishment of the E-Content Development Centre (EDC).
